

To the FCC:

Please reject the NAB's petition 04-160 to limit the ability of satellite radio providers to include local content in their offerings, including weather and traffic information. No such restrictions exist for satellite TV providers, as far as I know, so why for radio? Many (most) of us satellite radio subscribers listen to local radio stations as well, and they're well capable of providing uniquely local content that national satellite providers such as Sirius and XM can never hope to match. This really is apples and oranges, so please don't limit my choices for local content.

Respectfully,

Dennis Smith
